Meet Your Bartlett Arborist Representative

Daniel Waltenburg

Daniel Waltenburg is a Chicagoland native that developed a passion for the outdoors exploring local woods and nature preserves in the region from a young age. He attended Carthage College in Kenosha, Wisconsin and was president of the environmental club for three years before graduating with a bachelor's degree in biology.

After moving to Houston in 2022, Daniel was soon hired at Bartlett Tree Experts and discovered a great interest in the tree industry. He has continued to learn about the various aspects of the industry, and has been an Arborist Ground Person, Climber, Plant Health Care Specialist, and has done consulting work for Bartlett. Daniel holds a TDA Pesticide Applicator license and has begun working as a part-time Arborist Representative while working towards an ISA certification.

In his approach to tree and shrub care (and as a natural born tree hugger), Daniel aims to balance meeting the goals of clients with scientifically backed, environmentally conscious practices that are consistently being studied and expanded by Bartlett laboratories.

In his free time, Daniel enjoys hiking, taking his dogs to Houston parks, and watching his favorite football team - The Chicago Bears.
